Campaign Against Summer Hunger

You’re Helping Katheryn and Van Thrive

I’m hoping in the future that I won’t need this type of assistance,” Katheryn says. “But it’s been a night and day difference in terms of having food in my fridge and having something for my son to eat.”

Katheryn has a master’s degree. She never imagined she’d need help with food. But after she and her husband separated, Katheryn had no choice but to leave the business she started together.

Fortunately, after about six months of job hunting and interviewing, Katheryn will soon start a new position as an event planner. She’s thrilled to be able to provide for her son, Van, 10. But with no family support, Katheryn knows there’s no way she could’ve filled their table without your help.

“Thanks for You!”

Local Families Are Giving Thanks for You!

Dear Neighbor,

We started this year – and decade – strong thanks to your support over the holidays! Thank you for your generosity during the season of sharing. I hope you’ll continue your commitment to alleviating hunger in the months ahead. All Faiths Food Bank is working hard to connect our neighbors with good, nutritious food they need to grow and thrive.

Nutrient-rich groceries — like fresh produce — tend to be among the most expensive items at the store. Many parents fill their carts with cheap, less-nutritious food to fill their families up for less.

Now that it’s springtime, All Faiths Food Bank is gearing up for our annual Campaign Against Summer Hunger to help make sure kids who depend on school meal programs have enough to eat during June, July and August. I hope you’ll join us!

I’m truly grateful for the trust you place in All Faiths Food Bank to alleviate hunger in your community. Your gifts are feeding the future. Thank you.

FCCI Insurance Group has a longstanding relationship with All Faiths Food Bank. One of our very first donors, the company provides each employee eight hours to volunteer at an organization of their choice each month.

More than 22 years ago, an FCCI employee began the company’s commitment to community service by approaching our CEP, Greg Johnson, about helping with a Food Bank food drive.

“We’re so proud of the mission of this organization,” the FCCI team says. “We’re able to align our volunteerism with our financial commitment as well.”

The company often sends out email bursts about volunteer opportunities, and associates have a giving wall in their café where team members post opportunities about where they can give their time.

Although the team knows they live in an affluent area, they understand that hunger still exists. The FCCI team is committed to making sure their neighbors have access to the good, nutritious food they need to thrive.

“Everyone is connected by…a purpose and working for an organization that cares about their community and giving back,” FCCI’s group says. “There’s a huge value in demonstrating the caring, compassionate approach when you’re a part of a business operation. It has an enormous impact on the culture of the organization and makes people feel good about coming to work every day.”

We couldn’t agree more. Thank you so much to everyone at FCCI who’s dedicated to improving the health and well-being of our community. We couldn’t be more grateful for your generous support!

Katheryn has joined the Ending Hunger Society, a member of the Ending Hunger Society as a beneficiary of a charitable bequest, unrestricted bequest, or restricted bequest. “I’m hoping in the future that I won’t need this type of assistance,” Katheryn says. “But it’s been a night and day difference in terms of having food in my fridge and having something for my son to eat.”

Katheryn has had peace of mind knowing she can fill her son’s plate with healthy food. Thank you for helping her escape hunger as she works to get her family back on solid financial footing!

Ginger and her husband are raising their three children — ages 2, 13 and 15 — in the Sarasota area. They moved to Florida for a new job opportunity. Ginger’s husband had been an EMS lieutenant, but when his hand was crushed on duty, he had to find a new position.

The family was thriving in their new community — until Ginger was laid off. Between bills and insurance payments, her husband’s income often can’t cover their basic expenses.

Ginger’s optimistic about the future. She’s creating a staffing business to support her family — and found help with food at one of All Faiths Food Bank’s Mobile Farm Markets.

“Vegetables are great!” Ginger says of the pantry.

Now without a car, Ginger must take two buses to reach the pantry. But she says it’s worth the effort. Since she began visiting, she says she’s become more creative in the kitchen and makes healthier meals.

Summer is most difficult when Ginger must cover the free meals her 13-year-old typically eats at school in addition to her older child’s, who is homeschooled. As she works to improve her family’s financial situation,

Ginger’s truly grateful to have friends like you in her corner.

“You are important — there are so many things you can do for so many people,” she says. “I’d love to be able to give back the very way you are giving.”
